DR. SPINNEY
NO. 11 KEARNEY ST.,
Treats All Chronic and Special Diseases.
YOUNG MEN.
WHO may be suffering from the effects of youthful follies or indiscretions, will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity. Dr. Spinney will guarantee to forfeit $500 for every case of Seminal Weakness or private disease of any kind or character which he undertakes and fails to cure.
MIDDLE-AGED MEN.
There are many at the age of thirty to sixty,
who are troubled with too frequent evacuations
of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation, and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits aropy sediment will often be found,
and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, the color will be a thin milky hue,
again changing into dark and turbid appearance. There are many men who, of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration to the genito-urinary organ.
Office hours—10 to 4 and 6 to 8. Sundays from 10 to 11 A. M. Consultation free. Thorough examination and advice, $5.

THE TELEGRAPH STRIKE.

The public has been wonderfully patient with the great telegraph strike. The sympathies of the people were naturally on the side of the operators, because they know the Western Union Telegraph Company to be a great and powerful monopoly, whose interests are more largely advanced by the reduction of each employee's stipend by a few cents per day than by any surging tide of business. In the hands of such an institution the workmen's wages are regarded as the easiest thing to play upon. Let a slight depression of stock occur or dividends fall off for a quarter or two, and down go the wages. This process repeated a few times reduces the condition of the workers to beggary, for advances are seldom made unless forced. A strike ensues, business is suspended, and all interests suffer. In this case the public is the greatest sufferer. No strike that has occurred in this country, if we except that of the railroad workmen a few years ago, has come home with such unpleasant results to everybody. The vast speculative interests of the world were temporarily suspended, and financial questions that depended upon the telegraph for adjustment had to go by default. The channels of trade were blocked. The newspapers were deprived of their usual supply of general intelligence, and had to depend upon the material gathered at home by the reporters or wait the slow movement of the mail. The social world was bound hand and foot, friends died without the knowledge of loving ones far away; criminals could flee without danger of pursuit; the appeal for help in distress could not be answered. The operators have succeeded in giving this generation a realization of life as it was half a century ago when telegraphs were not, and carrier pigeons were the swiftest messengers of intelligence, with the supply so limited that they were put upon the route only in great emergencies.

But the suffering public has been patient. It wanted to see a fair fight, without bringing the pressure of its power to bear upon either party. There are a few impatient ones who have longed for the courts to swoop down upon the company and compel it to pay damages, but the law does not demand impossibilities. Others have vented their anger at the strikers, and invoked all kinds of calamities upon them. This too is not fair. These men had a grievance, and they have found in dealing with a rich arrogant monopoly that the only way to secure a hearing is to suspend labor. Strikes do not always succeed in effecting the direct object for which they were instituted, but in the end they are of good effect in enabling the public to judge between the aggressors and the aggrieved. In this instance a flood of light is being thrown upon the monopolistic character of the Western Union, and its cast-iron manner of dealing with dependents. Fortunately for their cause, the telegraph men compose a class which cannot easily be crushed. They are intelligent, and this fact not only keeps them always in demand, but enables them to turn to other pursuits in case of a lock out. The fact that there is but one great employer of telegraph labor in the country has been unfavorable to the general diffusion of a knowledge of the art and it is one of the few occupations that are not overworked. The places of the strikers cannot be filled with unskilled labor, as has been done for a time on railroads, the docks, brickyards and even in some classes of factories. Neither can a shipload of operatives be gathered in Europe and brought to this country. Either these men will be soon recalled to their positions, or other telegraph companies will be established, in competition with this immensely profitable company. A plant of $15,000,000 that pays liberal dividends on stock watered to $80,000,000 furnishes a very strong temptation to capital to embark in similar enterprises, and the opportunity is all the more likely to be improved because the faithful and capable operators of the country have shown that they are not bound hand and foot to the Western Union.

A SPEECH FROM PARNELL.

What American Sympathy has Achieved for Ireland—Aspirations for the Future—England's Course Condemned by all Nations.

At the banquet given to Senator Jones of Florida, by 150 of the leading public men of Dublin, Ireland, Mr. Parnell delivered a splendid speech, the concluding portion of which was as follows:

The part that America has played in the Irish movement of late years has been a very important one. (Hear.) Looking back over the history of our movement up to the present time, I feel convinced that we could not have advanced a single inch—that we could not have gained one solitary success—without the material and moral support which the aid and good will of the United States of America enabled us to achieve. (Hear, hear.) The English Government, and English opinion are in many respects very amendable to the influence of public sentiment all over the world upon any question—even on the Irish question. (Hear, hear.) We have lately had a signal example, in reference to the emigration question, of how susceptible English public opinion is to what is brought of them in other countries. (Hear.) This is a very proper feeling (hear and laughter)—and I do not suppose that I shall be accused of attempting to insult the British lion or commit any very heinous offense (I attribute to the English people that susceptibility which undoubtedly attaches to them in an unusual degree. (Hear, hear.) I trust that one of the results of what is passing in New York at the present moment may be that the Government of this country may turn their attention to some practical way of utilizing the bone and sinew which they are emigrating to New York—of utilizing the bone and sinew at home instead of pursuing the suicidal and ridiculous course of emigrating a laboring population of the utmost importance for the development of our industrial resources at home to a country where they are better fed, though they cannot possibly be more wanting. (Hear, hear.) The people of the United States of America, although some sections of opinion in that great Republic may not approve of everything that is done in the name of the popular party in this country, yet all, undoubtedly have a genuine and hearty sympathy in favor of Irish aspirations and Irish wishes. (Hear, and applause.) And this feeling is shown not only by the Irish Americans of the Republic but by almost every class. (Hear.) You cannot go anywhere throughout the Union, whether it be to New York with its seeming Irish population; to Chicago, in the North-west, with its many thousands of Irishmen also; or to the coast of the Pacific, on the slopes of California; or to Florida—I was going to say the home, but I would rather call it the adopted home of our guests here to night—(cheers)—where there is hardly an Irishman to be found—in every part of the United States, whether amongst the Republicans of the North or the Democrats of the South—in every political party, and amongst all the social strata of the people of the great Republic, you find a most genuine belief and assurance that Ireland has not been properly treated by those responsible for her government—(hear, hear)—and the desire in some way or other to alleviate the sufferings of her people and to put her on her road to better times. (Applause.) I may not be as I have said, that all these sections of that great Republic believe in all the means that have been from time to time adopted in this country, or approved of all the proceedings that sometimes take place, but there is a genuine belief that Ireland is worthy of better things—(hear, hear)—and those who come from that great Republic to this country, as our guests here to night, have begun to see how it is that the people of Ireland, so gifted and endowed by nature, with a soil teeming with fertility, and with everything to make a nation and a country happy, are so far behind in the race of prosperity and lag so slowly in the march of the nations of the earth. (Hear, hear.) They have begun to find out that those rules of government which they have always regarded as a part of their Constitution, and which they have always recognized as the first elements and principles of good government for a country, that in every particular, from the highest ruler in this land down to the humblest policeman, those rules of constitutional government, as regards the treatment of this country, have been universally and absolutely disregarded—(hear, hear)—and they may be pardoned for thinking that they are entitled to look in this direction, and not to any natural inferiority or backwardness on the part of the population of Ireland, and not to any want in the doubtful soil of our country for the extraordinary position in which Ireland has found herself during so many centuries. (Applause.) The lesson which gentlemen like the Senator must learn from a careful and impartial study of the condition of politics in this country, and the system of government which exists among us, must when they go back to America coming from the mouths of such men, be of enormous value in shaping the public opinion of the people of America and encouraging them to continue and increase the assistance, moral and material, which they have been so willing to render to us in our troubles and misfortunes. (Applause.) It is impossible to continue to blacken the character of a nation in these days of the public press, of the ocean steamship, and electric telegraph. (Hear, hear.) You may do it for a while, but the truth will be found out sooner and more speedily than in the old times—(hear)—and although the wires may be controlled from this side in a sense adversely to our interests, yet the light will be let in by degrees, and the people of America will understand and will care to know more and more every day of the real state of affairs in this country, and the moral effect which that knowledge will create in America will work most advantageously for our benefit in Ireland. (Hear, and applause.) I shall resume my seat by thanking you and thanking the Lord Mayor for the honor you have done me in permitting me to take part in this demonstration of respect and gratitude to one of America's most illustrious and adopted sons. (Loud and prolonged applause.)

THE SOUTHERN EXPOSITION.

President Arthur's Speech at Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, August 1. "I count myself fortunate that I am within the borders of this beautiful city of the south, on a day which must henceforth be famous in its history, for a great undertaking of National interest and importance centers here, and is now upon its career. I congratulate the promoters and managers of this exposition, even at this early stage of its existence, it gives many pledges of success; for the zeal and enthusiasm, which they have displayed in their labors of the preparation, and the frequent tidings of encouragement by which those labors have been lightened and made glad, the splendid triumphs of American genius, activity and skill which are arranged within these walls; the presence of the large multitudes who throng these hospitable streets, are all tokens that the enterprise here inaugurated will be crowned with brilliant, far-reaching and enduring results, and will multiply the aims of industry, better its operatives and elevate its standard of attainment, and by suggesting new wants it will invite new activities.

It will disclose National resources as yet unexplained, and point the way to their prompt and profitable development. In countless ways it will promote the art of peace and help to bring about the works of peace, proclaiming harmony and good will and brotherly kindness throughout all the land and to all the inhabitants thereof. (Applause.) I now declare that the Southern Exposition is open and may God speed the fulfillments of all its lofty and ennobling purposes. (Immense applause.)

When Mr. Arthur declared the Exposition open the enthusiastic crowd signified their approval again, and Arthur, reaching out his hand, pulled the silk cord dangling above the stand, thereby opening the throttle of Reynold's Corliss engine, and putting in operation all engines and machinery in the department; the chime of bells pealed forth, and the band and grand organ, presided over by Prof. Zoller of the Seventh Regiment, and the festival chorus of 500 voices started the well-known air of "America." Ten thousand copies had been distributed among the throng, and those who were musically inclined joined in the patriotic and ennobling song. Meantime the President had left the stand, accompanied by the Reception Committee, and walked about the building inspecting the display. He was greeted with cheers wherever he went. He was taken first to the Art Gallery in the Park; about a third of the pictures had been hung, and the party spent considerable time examining the works of art. From the Art Gallery the President went to lunch with M. Dupont, at his home in the Park, and later dined with the Ponnensis Club in the city.

THE ADMISSION OF DAKOTA.—The attempt will no doubt be renewed at the next session of Congress to have Dakota admitted as a State, but with a largely preponderating Democratic majority in the house, it is thought there is not much probability of this end being reached. It is admitted that Dakota has a larger population than several of the other States when admitted, and asserted, also, that the Territory has more postoffices than Delaware, Rhode Island, Nebraska and Montana combined. If politics were left out of the question Dakota would find no difficulty in being admitted into the Union. The hitch consists in the fact that once a State, Dakota will have two United States Senators to elect, with a strong probability of their being Republicans.—S. F. Call.

THOSE WOMEN FOLK.

How Hard-Headed Men Estimate Some Things Which They Don't Understand.

Anybody who has led a domestic life knows how common such things as the backache, and pains in the chest, are among the women who do the work. Often—and perhaps generally—the distresses are borne without much complaint. The women get about, and the machinery of the house goes on. Beyond this, those coarse-grained animals whom New England women call "the men folks," seldom look. So long as their wives or daughters are not actually in bed, under the doctor's care, the average thick-skinned husband and father gives the subject no attention. At the same time the poor household drudges—who deserve a better fate—creep around, broom or utensils in hand, up stairs down stairs and out-of-doors, doing that woman's work, which "is never done." Losses of loved wives and fair girls lose a whose suddenness and unexpectedness astonish those wooden-pated husbands and fathers—fall, seemingly out of a clear sky, and form the logical sequel to the story of neglect. Now, you men who stand at the heads of ten thousand such homes, allow us to drop a word in your receptive ears. If these women of yours are worth having, they are worth saving. That backache—that pain in the chest! What are they but indications of some organic trouble of the kidneys, the heart, or the lungs? End it at once by the application of BENSON'S CAPSICUM POROUS PLASTER. It will soothe that nervous distress, drive away that pain, banish that dull, weary back-ache, give new strength to the body and fresh hope to the heart. No other plaster will do this. The Benson's Plaster, however, is not made to sell but to heal. It is a remedy which never broke its promise—and never will.

Your druggist has it. But before paying your 25 cents and putting the plaster in your pocket, look for the word CAPSICUM cut in the middle. Sealbury & Johnson, Pharmaceutical Chemists, New York

IN AND OUT OF TOWN.

What is Being Said and Done in a Small Way.

Hock Mason went home yesterday. Assessor Stoddard is around again. Derby and Evans came in from Pyramid last night.

M. B. Dwelly returned to his Yolo county ranch yesterday.

Isaac M. Wheeler, an Ohio Knight, spent yesterday in Reno.

Work is being pushed in the Pyramid Mining Company's tunnel.

Davis, the printer, left Reno yesterday for Washington Territory.

Judge Marshall and wife have returned from their trip to Yosemite.

Sunderland's little boy who was at death's door a few days ago is convalescing.

Ex-Governor Kinkaid still lingers in Reno, and is having lots of fun with the boys.

J. B. Putman was yesterday convicted in the Justice court of being drunk and disorderly and sent over the river for ten days.

The Rabbit Hole sulphur mines in Humboldt county finds a market in San Francisco every month for 80 tons of refined sulphur.

Henry Welch left for the southern country yesterday to do some mining in Inyo county. The Journal hopes he will strike a dozen bonanzas.

Volume 17 of the Supreme Court Reports is now in the hands of the State Printer and will be out and ready for delivery in a few weeks.

Jim Foxwall, and other of the Verdi bridge contractors, were in town yesterday arranging a bond for the faithful performance of the contract.

Bishop Luther, and family, of Paradise Valley, who have been spending a week or two with friends at Franktown, returned home yesterday morning.

The coinage at the Carson Mint during July, 1883, is as follows: Double eagles, $60,000; eagles $120,000; standard dollars, $100,000. Total, $280,000.

Goodwin, one of the jewelry thieves recently sent to the Territorial prison from Walla Walla, is said to have been identified as the notorious Sacramento murderer, Tom Lawton.

What promises to be the event of the season is the Caledonian picnic at Treadway's park, to-morrow. It is thought two cars at least will be required to carry all who contemplate going from Reno.

Pat Lannan, an old time Comstocker, now of Salt Lake, was a passenger west yesterday morning. The delayed train afforded him an opportunity to meet several old Nevada friends at the depot.

A singular bet was made the other day on the number of one dollar greenbacks it would take to balance a $20 gold piece. The guesses ran all the way from 300 to 1,000. All were surprised to know that it took only 34.

Sam Hing, the celestial who did the shooting in Chinatown night before last, had a hearing before Justice Young yesterday and was held to answer the charge of an assault with intent to kill, with bail fixed at $1,000, which was given.

A Brave Act but Poor Judgment.

A boatman who recently rescued a Chinese leper who attempted to commit suicide by jumping into the Columbia river near Portland, Oregon, is graciously permitted to parade the streets of that city dressed in sackcloth and ashes, as an atonement for this rash act.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS.

Their Number, Duties, Habits, Pay and Requisites.

The San Francisco Chronicle says, the "drummer," as the business solicitor is commonly termed, enjoys a wide reputation and represents nearly all lines of business—the illegitimate as well as the legitimate—but it is only of the latter class, who may be comprised under the general designation of commercial travelers, that it is now the intention to speak. It is estimated that there are over 25,000 of them in the United States. Cigars, liquors, drugs, clothing, groceries, hats, hardware, boots and shoes, stationery, carpets, coffee and spices, dry goods, harness and saddlery, jewelry and all lines of mercantile business have their representatives among the commercial travelers. The business is replete with peculiarities. The boundaries of the Commercial Travelers Association of California, a mutual benefit organization of about 250 members, include California, Oregon, Washington Territory, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico. The home office of the Association is located in San Francisco and its members are traveling continuously all over the Pacific coast. The commercial traveler is employed almost exclusively by the wholesale merchants. Many who are regularly in the business are not members of the Association, and it is estimated that there are never less than 500 commercial travelers on the road who are residents of San Francisco. If successful in the highest degree, the commercial traveler may be described as a man of excellent address, trustworthy, acute in perception and very energetic. He is also distinguished for his pertinacity and his assurance. The salaries of these drummers vary according to ability, experience and integrity, and run from $100 to $250 or $300 a month. The leading Eastern cities—such as New York, Chicago and St. Louis—send drummers annually or semi-annually to San Francisco to solicit trade for various mercantile specialties, but the representatives of California seldom ever travel farther East than San Francisco. "It isn't of any use," remarked President Van Hensen, "for us to go to New York or Chicago, for that would be like taking coals to Newcastle." The character of a mercantile house can usually be accurately determined by the appearance and habits of its traveling representative. If he be well dressed, temperate and dignified in his speech and actions, and stays at the best hotels, it may be safely concluded that he is in receipt of a liberal salary and is traveling for a solid house, while, on the contrary, if he be slovenly in his attire, coarse and boisterous in his address, and a patron of the second and third class hotels, the presumption is that the house which he represents is of a correspondingly low status. When about to set out on a business tour the commercial traveler usually sends on postal cards in advance to advise the dealers in the district which he is about to visit of his coming, and to desire them to hold all orders until he arrives. It is customary with merchants to intrust to their traveling agents or drummers the collection of big bills of merchandise sold by them, and any dishonesty is sure to prove disastrous. It often happens that a drummer appears in a town or city with his samples as the accredited agent of several houses in different lines of business. These agents belong to the class of commission men, as it is called, and do not receive any stated salary, but get a commission on the value of the goods which they sell. The commercial traveler has a special district or territory assigned to him, and it is his aim to cultivate the esteem of the merchants with whom he comes in contact that he can command their trade. If he be successful in his attempts—and such instances are not rare—he greatly enhances his own business value and can, at any time, secure a position with the best house. As he is on the road eight months out of the twelve, on an average, it would seem that domesticity was not in harmony with the life of the commercial traveler; but although thus compelled to be away from home nearly all of the time and only seeing their wives and children at such long intervals, the majority of the commercial travelers now in the business are married and are reported to be excellent husbands.

The most healthy and popular drink of the season is the ice cold soda water sparkling with purest gas and flavored with true, delicious fruit syrups, to be had only at Queen's soda fountain.

THE FIRE FIEND.

Burning of the Railroad Bridge at Camp 26.

At 10:30 o'clock night before last, the railroad bridge across the Truckee at camp 26, two miles above Verdi, took fire and was soon in ashes. The watchman says he examined the bridge as usual after the west bound freight train had passed over it at 9 o'clock. The fire was not discovered until it was well underway, and all efforts to subdue it was unavailing. The bridge was totally destroyed. At daylight the company had 125 men, 80 white men and 45 Chinamen on the ground, constructing a temporary bridge over which to transfer passengers and baggage. The east bound passengers were crossed in time to reach Reno for dinner; the mail, express and baggage did not arrive until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. West bound passengers were crossed in time to reach Blue Canyon for supper. The mail, express and baggage had to be transferred by hand, and was necessarily slow and laborious. The same process will have to be repeated this morning. The abutments are all good and a temporary bridge will be laid so that trains can cross safely by to-morrow morning. The company keeps ready made a duplicate of all bridges on the line of the road, so that in case of an accident like this the bridge can be replaced in a few hours after the material is on the ground. A duplicate of the burned bridge will be in place by Sunday morning. The origin of the fire is not known. Some attribute it to tramps, while others believe coals dropped from the passing engine and were unnoticed by the watchman. The latter theory is not at all improbable.

First Class in History Stand Up!

This is the age of civilization. While the lady's parrot calls good boys wicked names, the steam horse tears up the prairies with his iron hoofs. What is the result?

Electric lights, well dressed tax collectors, and policemen who know how to whistle opera airs and help ladies across the streets.

Turn for a moment to the dusty records of antiquity. What dost thou see, Horatio?

I see wooden plows, palaces and mud huts, professors of stone cutting, but no newspapers.

Do you see any telegraphs, railways, hospitals, public schools, street cars and associations for the prevention of cruelty to animals? No, sir, not one.

What is the reason?

Reason enough. In these days we have the magnificent, prosperous and always satisfactory Callender's Georgia Minstrels. With a first class show like this, all the other improvements are possible, and society flourishes like old Babylon. This great entertainment will be here on the 8th.

Met Him Before.

Last Sunday evening, says the Lundy (Mono Co.) Index, Jim Townsend of the Reno Gazette staff corralled a stranger from Tioga in front of a saloon, and filled him nearly full of old reminiscences. After Jim had talked with him for half an hour, the man from Tioga interrupted his conversation by saying: "Do you know what I think of you? I think you're a d—d liar." Turning one of his childlike and bland three-for-a-drink smiles on the stranger Jim replied: "Well you must have known me in Reno."

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. feb, 21-swft-lyr.

THE EIGHTH WONDER.

The Greatest Discovery of the Age—A Machine Calculated to Render Gold and Silver Valueless.

The fact has long been known to chemists that the waters of the ocean contain an appreciable quantity of gold and silver in solution. Scientific experiments have demonstrated the fact that each ton of sea water contains about one milligramme of gold and two of silver. To this amount these precious metals have frequently been extracted from the sea water, but like the manufacture of diamonds, the expense necessarily incurred in the operation, rendered the work unprofitable. For more than a century, chemists in all parts of the world have been endeavoring to discover some inexpensive process by which the precious metal thus in solution could be collected, but thus far without success. Some years ago a gentleman who graduated at one of the Eastern Colleges when a young man, and subsequently followed a sea-faring life for a number of years, a pioneer in the gold fields of California, and one of the first to successfully work the refractory ores east of the Sierras, undertook to solve this problem. He has spent many years of hard labor and much money in the work, and the result of his study and labor is destined ere long to astonish the world. That his efforts have been crowned with success there is no longer any doubt, and the means employed are as simple as the results are wonderful. It would be an unpardonable breach of confidence to enter into details, and the reader must be content for the present to know that it consists of a simple yet ingenious apparatus, fastened to the keel of a ship, which, being thus submerged and moved through the water collects and securely holds every particle of the precious metal with which it comes in contact. It is estimated that the instrument will collect at least a ton of gold and silver on a single voyage from San Francisco to Yokohama. If the name of the inventor should be given it would not be a strange one, for everybody on the Pacific coast knows or at least have heard of Captain Jim Townsend, of Mill Creek.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Accidental Shooting of an Italian Ranchman on the Truckee Meadows.

Through the Enterprise it is learned that at about 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon Angelo Corseglio, an Italian ranchman residing on the Truckee Meadows, while loading a shotgun, accidentally shot himself through the head. The gun was a muzzle-loader. Corseglio had loaded one of the barrels, and was loading the second, when, by some means the first was discharged. The contents of the barrel entered the man's mouth, and, passing up through his head, shattered his brains, killing him instantly.

His family and some men working on the ranch were present when the accident occurred. The men had just finished their dinner, and were about to return to the field to mow barley when Corseglio said he would load his gun, and take it along, as they might see some rabbits on the way.

Deceased was a native of Italy, and from near Genoa. He was about thirty years of age. He leaves a wife and two children. He has been in this country seven years, but his wife came out only one year ago. The ranch at which the accident occurred is in Storey county. Coroner Mott, of Virginia, was notified and took charge of the remains.

Business and Pleasure.

Eli Bomeni, of Mechanicsburg, Ohio, a thorough business man and a gentleman of wealth, on his way to attend the Knights Conclave in San Francisco, who has been spending a few days in Reno, took the stage yesterday morning to visit friends at Jamison City, Cal. On his return from San Francisco Mr. Bomeni will again stop in Reno with an eye single to some business enterprise.

Two-Thirds Of A Bottle Cures.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I have been taking your "Favorite Prescription" for "female weakness." Before I had taken it two days I began to feel stronger. I have taken but two-thirds of a bottle and believe I am cured. Gratefully, Mrs. H. C. Lovett, Wataeka, Ill.
